

Welcome to the Fish Veterinary Society

Welcome to the website of the Fish Veterinary Society.

The Society is a forum for Veterinary Surgeons with an interest in fish as well as Fish Health Professionals and veterinary students. It also promotes fish welfare and an increasing stake in the health management of fish whether farmed, in public aquaria or in the ornamental sector including fish kept as pets. Applications for membership are invited from veterinarians, veterinary students and appropriately qualified fish health professionals; click on the Membership button to see the options.

We have recently contacted all members with regard to some changes to how the Society operates, meetings etc. If you haven't received the letter or are interested in membership by all means have a look and contact us.

The Society holds a list of vets who are interested in treating fish .

The most recent FVS Spring Scientific Meeting took place near Edinburgh on 25 - 26 March 2014. Full details will soon be available on the Members' area of the website.

FVS Spring Scientific Conference 2014

ORNAMENTAL FISH KEEPING - Leaflet Series

The BVA Animal Welfare Foundation (BVA AWF) is pleased to make available a leaflet on Ornamental Fish Keeping; part of a series of information leaflets designed to assist pet owners.

Read the full article . . .